Not THAT Bruce & Pattie...

A custom-built robot, likely a Raspberry Pi 3B+, is shown on a light-colored wooden table. The robot has a black chassis with four yellow wheels. It is equipped with various electronic components, including a Raspberry Pi board, a red sensor module (possibly a Sharp IR sensor), and a blue sensor module. Numerous colored wires (red, yellow, blue, black) are connected to the robot's components. The robot is positioned in the center of the frame, facing slightly to the left. The background is a blurred office setting with a black desk and a chair.

Where did this come from?

I found Pecha Kuchas doing research on business presentations for my EID class

I believe this was the article that I found – from Wired

Look how happy they are!

Pecha Kucha: Get to the PowerPoint in 20 Slides Then Sit the Hell Down

For UX (or any) Design, to start a project right, we need good tools for...

- Communication
- Learning and Analysis
- Planning
- Authorization

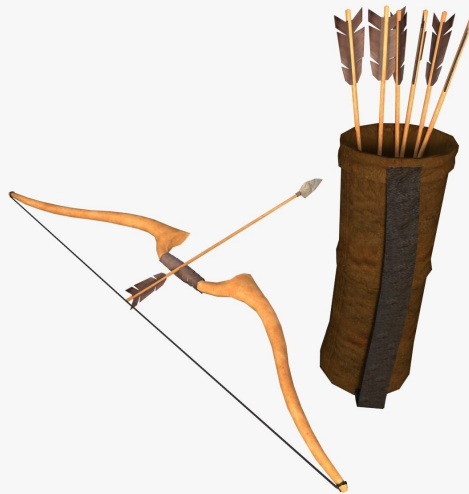

It's about making a solid foundation for the project.

So I added Pecha Kuchas to a list of UX Analysis and Planning Methods

- Project Plan
- Project Overview
- Project Brief
- Stakeholder Interviews
- Elevator Pitch
- Artifacts from the Future
- Kano Model
- Pecha Kucha
- Kickoff Meeting
- Work Breakdown Structures

I may be just a bit obsessed with finding tools...
(and the carrying of said tools)

Pecha Kucha is Japanese for “Chatter”

“Visual Storytelling that Celebrates Humanity”

The Pecha Kucha

- A fast and automatically timed presentation
- Designed to be brief and compelling (not detailed)
- Entertaining (not like this one)
- Make your points quickly, move on

The screenshot shows the PechaKucha website homepage. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the PechaKucha logo, a search bar, and links for 'For Schools' and 'For Businesses'. Below the navigation bar, there is a main hero section with a large image of a crowd of people at a PechaKucha event. The text 'Visual Storytelling That Celebrates Humanity' is overlaid on the image. Below this, there is a paragraph describing the format: 'Open, spontaneous, fun, informal, silo-breaking - words used to describe how PechaKucha brings people together around the world to laugh, learn and connect.' A 'Join Community' button is also present. Further down, there is a section titled 'What is PechaKucha?' with a question mark icon and a paragraph explaining the 20x20 format. At the bottom, there are four colored boxes with statistics: '137 Countries' (green), '1200 Cities' (blue), '10K+ Events' (purple), and '1300 Presentations' (red).

What is PechaKucha?

PechaKucha's 20x20 presentation format shows your 20 chosen images, each for 20 seconds. In other words, seconds to tell your story, with visuals guiding the way. PechaKucha means "chit chat" in Japanese. This created as nighttime get-togethers in Tokyo in 2003 by two renowned architects. Since then, three million people have attended PechaKucha events worldwide. Read more.

Hints

- Try it out (at least) once before you show up
- If you're doing it as a team...
- You can trade off as you're talking to slides...
- We're all friends here – don't worry
- Try to have a little fun while sharing your topic
 - Just a little

I'm going to put up a sign-up sheet for slots on 12/2 and 12/4.

We'll try to run ~6 presentations on those days that week.

An appeal

For those of you who don't have to DO a Pecha Kucha

Show up that week for the presentations

Support your fellow students

Maybe hear about a topic you might like to know more about
